26 RICOH COMPANY LTD.,) CASE NO. CV-03-4669-MJJ (EMC)
27 vs. Plaintiff,) RICOH'S NOTICE OF MOTION AND 28 AEROFLEX ET AL,) MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE AMENDED Defendant.) COMPLAINT
Date: March 30, 2004
Time: 9:30 a.m.
Courtroom: 11

NOTICE OF MOTION AND RELIEF REQUESTEDTO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on March 30, 2004, at 9:30 a.m. in Courtroom 11 of the above-referenced Plaintiff Ricoh Company, Ltd. (“Ricoh”), will and hereby does move the Court for leave to amend the complaint. The proposed amendment adds a related party, narrows the number of claims of the ‘432 patent that are the subject of Ricoh’s infringement claims, and (in response to defendants Rule 12(c) motion) may better articulate the basis for Ricoh’s infringement allegation. Counsel for the defendants have refused to consent to the filing of the amended complaint.

Ricoh bases this Motion upon the attached proposed amended complaint, the following Memorandum of Points and Authorities, all pleadings on file in these cases, and such argument as may be heard by this Court. A proposed order is attached.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIESINTRODUCTION

Ricoh’s proposed amended complaint does three things. First, it adds a party named Aeroflex Colorado Springs, Inc. (hereafter “Aeroflex Colorado”), which is related to defendant Aeroflex Inc. During discovery, Ricoh has learned that Aeroflex Colorado assists defendant Aeroflex in its infringing activities. Ricoh seeks to join the affiliate in the interest of efficiency and judicial economy.

Second, the amended complaint narrows, without prejudice, the number of claims of the ‘432 patent that are the subject of Ricoh’s infringement claims, and thus the number of claims the Court will need to consider when ruling on the Complaint. Third, the amended complaint makes even more clear that Ricoh’s infringement allegations are based upon both 35 U.S.C. § 271(a) and § 271(g). Although Ricoh’s complaint was always based upon both sections, this clarification is appropriate in response to defendants Rule 12(c) motion, which incorrectly asserts that Ricoh’s complaint was limited solely to § 271(g).

1 PROCEDURAL POSTURE

2 This action was originally filed in Delaware in January 2003 and in August 2003, transferred
3 to this Court. The defendants have filed answers and counterclaims which have been amended twice.
4 Ricoh has not previously sought to amend its complaint. In December 2003, this Court rejected the 5 defendants' motion to dismiss or stay. While the Delaware court issued a case management order, this
6 Court has deferred holding a case management conference without fixing a date therefore, and no cut off
7 date for joining other parties, discovery deadlines, pretrial schedule or trial date has been set by this 8 Court.

9 On February 4, 2004, the defendants filed a motion for judgment on the pleadings pursuant to 10 Rule 12(c). Ricoh believes that the proposed amended complaint would moot that motion (an issue to 11 be resolved in the context of that motion). On February 12, Ricoh sent a copy of the proposed amended
12 complaint to the defendants and asked them to stipulate to it. On February 17, 2004, the defendants
13 refused to either stipulate or to withdraw their Rule 12(c) motion.

15

16 FACTUAL BACKGROUND

17 A. The New Aeroflex Party.

18 Ricoh posed an interrogatory to the defendants in which they were requested to “[d]escribe
19 the organizational structure of defendant, including, but not limited to those groups, divisions, teams and 20 other organizations having any involvement in defendant's ASIC Method at any time.” (Weinstein Dec.
21 Ex. 1, Ricoh's First Set of Interrogatories to all Defendants.) Defendant Aeroflex did not identify its 22 Colorado Springs facility in its response nor provide any documents that show the relationships between 23 Aeroflex and any subsidiary or division. (Weinstein Dec. Ex. 2, Aeroflex Inc.'s response to Ricoh's 24 First set of Interrogatories.) Nevertheless, during oral argument before this Court concerning the since
25 denied motion to stay, Ricoh learned that an entity related to Aeroflex was involved in the accused 26 patent infringement. Further information has not been forthcoming.

1 For example, in the proposed Case Management Statement that was filed last month,
2 Aeroflex represented that “Defendant Aeroflex is collecting and will produce information regarding
3 logic synthesis operations at its Aeroflex Colorado Springs facility (formerly UTMC Microelectronic
4 Systems, Inc.).” (Weinstein Dec. Ex. 3, Case Management Statement filed 2/2/04, at p. 7.) No
5 documents have yet been produced.

6 Aeroflex’s website refers to “Aeroflex Microelectronic Solutions - Colorado Springs, 7 Colorado.” (Weinstein Dec. Ex. 4, Aeroflex Web page.) Documents filed with the Securities and
8 Exchange Commission refer to Aeroflex Colorado Spring, Inc. (Weinstein Dec. Ex. 5., Aeroflex SEC
9 Form 10-K filing) Ricoh is relying on the SEC filings for the proper name of the entity.
10

11 B. The Narrowed Claims At Issue.

12 The proposed amended complaint reduces the number of claims of the ‘432 patent that are 13 the subject of Ricoh’s infringement claims. Narrowing the number of claims at issue will simplify the 14 Markman claim construction process, as well as the infringement analysis.

15 C. The Infringement Allegations.

16 The proposed amended complaint modifies the paragraphs containing the infringement
17 allegations. This modification is prompted by the defendants’ pending motion for judgment on the 18 pleadings.

19 In December 2003, two of the Matrox defendants moved for summary judgment based on the 20 argument that they did not conduct any allegedly infringing activities in the United States. After Ricoh
21 deposed a corporate representative of the movants (Weinstein Dec. Ex. 6., Motion for Summary
22 Judgment filed 12/2/03.), the motion was withdrawn on February 10, 2004. (Weinstein Dec. Ex. 7,
23 Notice of Withdrawal.)

25 Last week, all of the defendants moved for judgment on the pleadings pursuant to Rule 12(c).
26 The motion is noticed for hearing on March 16 and in essence, attempts to resurrect the withdrawn
27 summary judgment motion. Ricoh intends to show, in responding to that motion, that it is based on a misreading of the complaint and an improper interpretation of the applicable law. Although Ricoh

1 firmly believes that its existing complaint is sufficient, it now proposes to amend its complaint and
 2 believes that act will assist the Court in ruling on the Rule 12(c) pending motion. Ricoh's amendment
 3 modifies paragraphs 17, 23, 29, 35, 41, 47 and 53 to assert that each of the ASIC defendants "has been
 4 and is now infringing the '432 Patent by utilizing in the United States the process of one or more of 5 claims 13-17 of the '432 Patent as part of the process of manufacturing application specific integrated
 6 circuits, and/or by selling, offering to sell and/or importing into the United States, application specific
 7 integrated circuits made with the use and/or by the process of one or more of claims 13-17 of the '432
 8 Patent, either literally or under the doctrine of equivalents." (emphasis added to show changes from 9 Ricoh's original Complaint).

10
 11 In refusing to stipulate to the amended complaint, defendants did not identify any prejudice
 12 that they would suffer by agreeing to the proposed amendment. (Weinstein Dec. Ex. 9, correspondence 13 from defendants dated 2/17/04).

14
 15 ARGUMENT

16 I. LEAVE TO AMEND IS FREELY GIVEN

17 Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a) states that a complaint may be amended upon leave of the court and 18 "leave shall be freely given when justice so requires." The Ninth Circuit has consistently held that leave
 19 to amend should be granted unless, in an extraordinary case, the court "determines that the pleading
 20 could not possibly be cured by the allegation of other facts." Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1127 (9th 21 Cir. 2000). Here, there are a significant amount of facts to support Ricoh's amended complaint and still 22 a substantial amount of factual discovery to be obtained. In addition, the Lopez court noted "we have 23 repeatedly stressed that the court must remain guided by the 'underlying purpose of Rule 15...to 24 facilitate decision on the merits, rather than on the pleadings or technicalities.'" Id., quoting Noll v.
 25 Carlson, 809 F.2d 1446 at 1448 (9th Cir. 1987).

26 Other factors weigh into the decision of whether to grant leave to amend. These factors
 27 include "the presence or absence of undue delay, bad faith, dilatory motive, repeated failure to cure

1 deficiencies by previous amendments, undue prejudice to the opposing party and futility of the proposed
 2 amendment.” United States v. SmithKline Beecham, Inc., 245 F.3d 1048 at 1052 (9th Cir. 2001),
 3 quoting Moore v. Kayport Package Express, Inc., 885 F.2d 531 at 538 (9th Cir. 1989). The defendants
 4 cannot allege or prove that actions by Ricoh fall into any of these categories. Ricoh’s proposed 5 amendment of its complaint appropriately seeks to add a related party, narrow the claims at issue, and 6 clarify its allegations of infringement against the defendants. None of the above mentioned factors or 7 motivations exist in Ricoh’s filing of an Amended Complaint.

9 A. The Court should allow joinder of Aeroflex Colorado

10 When Ricoh filed its complaint, it believed that Aeroflex did all of its own ASIC design
 11 synthesis. As stated above, Ricoh later learned that another Aeroflex entity is assisting defendant
 12 Aeroflex in performing design synthesis. Aeroflex did not reveal information about that related entity in 13 response to discovery. While Aeroflex recently represented to this Court that it would provide 14 information concerning that activity, it has not yet done so. Accordingly, any prejudice that might exist
 15 has been caused by defendant Aeroflex. Fed. R. Civ. P. 20 permits parties to permissively include
 16 additional parties to a lawsuit after the suit has been filed. A party may be joined as a defendant “if 17 there is asserted against them jointly, severally, or in the alternative, any right of relief in respect of or 18 arising out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences and if any 19 question of law or fact common to all defendants will arise in the action.” The Court has the discretion 20 of whether to grant a motion to add a party and leave to file an amended complaint reflecting the 21 additional party. Meyercheck v. Givens, (7th Cir. 1950) 180 F.2d 221.

22 At the very least, Aeroflex markets and sells ASICs. (See Aeroflex Website printout, 23 Weinstein Decl. Ex. 8.) Some, if not all, of the ASICs sold by Aeroflex are designed by Aeroflex
 24 Colorado. Although a subsidiary of Aeroflex could be jointly (and severally) liable for patent
 25 infringement in separate lawsuits, it would be more judicially economical to join Aeroflex Colorado in 26 the present lawsuit where similar facts and issues can be resolved in one proceeding. See, Stanley
 27 Works v. Haeger Potteries, Inc., 142 U.S.P.Q. 256 (N. D. Ill 1964).

1 The inclusion of Aeroflex Colorado would not impede the present litigation. Adding
2 Aeroflex Colorado would not create any considerable delay in the litigation. Although this case has 3 been pending for over one year, discovery is still in its infancy. Furthermore, since this case has been
4 transferred to this Court, a case management conference has not yet been held and no trial date
5 established. No cut off date for joining other parties has been set by this Court. The inclusion of 6 Aeroflex Colorado would not prejudice any defendant, nor would it create added expense to the lawsuit.
7 See, Naxon Telesign Corp. v. GTE, 213 U.S.P.Q. 40 (N. D. Ill. 1980).

9 B. The Court should allow the number of claims to be reduced

10 The amended complaint reduces, without prejudice, the number of claims of the '432 patent
11 that are the subject of Ricoh's infringement claims. Narrowing the number of claims at issue will 12 simplify the Markman claim construction process, as well as the infringement analysis.

13

14 C. The Court should allow Ricoh leave to amend its infringement statement

15 Ricoh also seeks to amend its complaint pursuant to Rule 15(a) simply to clarify its proper
16 allegations against the defendants. On February 4, 2004, defendants filed a motion for Judgment on the 17 Pleadings pursuant to Rule 12(c). With their Rule 12(c) motion, Ricoh believes that the defendants are 18 now attempting to avoid the merits of Ricoh's infringement claims against them and instead are 19 mischaracterizing and recasting Ricoh's complaint. The merits of that position will, of course, be 20 resolved by that motion but it has also been established that courts may allow a party to amend their 21 Complaint to clarify their claims against an opposing party, see e.g., Meyerson v. Wickes Co. Inc., 882 F.
22 Supp. 1371 at 1379 (S.D.N.Y. 1995) (court allowed party to amend its complaint to clarify its claims 23 against defendants). Consistent with that policy, Ricoh should be given leave to amend its complaint to 24 clarify its allegations against the defendants so as not to incur any further delay of a decision on the 25 merits of Ricoh's case.

CONCLUSION

Ricoh respectfully requests that this Court grant leave to file its proposed Amended Complaint as specified in the proposed order.

Dated: February 18, 2004

Respectfully submitted,

Ricoh Company, Ltd.
